

Summary

Contego Medical, LLC is a medical device company dedicated to developing novel devices for endovascular procedures. The Company has developed a portfolio of next-generation interventional medical devices that incorporate embolic protection functionality to address clear unmet needs. Contego's platform technology has been uniquely designed to integrate embolic protection with the treatment portion (i.e. balloon or stent) on the same catheter. The benefit of this technology is that treatment and protection can be accomplished with a single device. Combining these functionalities also allows more patients to benefit from embolic protection as compared to currently available methods. The integrated platforms under development have the potential to become standard of care in their target treatment areas as Contego's products are designed to simplify procedures, improve outcomes, and offer cost-effective solutions.

Ravish Sachar, MD is the founder and CEO of Contego Medical. An interventional cardiologist by training, Dr. Sachar is a thought leader in coronary and peripheral vascular interventions, having authored numerous publications and books, and serves as an advisor to several medical device companies. Jay Yadav, MD, co-founded Contego with Dr. Sachar. Dr. Yadav is renowned and accomplished in the medical device community having founded several successful companies including CardioMEMS, Inc. and AngioGuard, Inc.
